Football stars help hospital start festive celebrations

TOP footballers from West Ham took time out from training to visit young patients on Acorn ward at Whipps Cross Hospital.

Captain Kevin Nolan, Andy Carroll, Jussi Jaaskelainen, Winston Reid, James Tomkins, Joey O'Brien, Matt Jarvis and Modibo Maiga donned Santa hats during the special trip to the ward where they delivered presents, including club memorabilia.

Mr Nolan said: "We are all only too pleased to put some smiles on the faces of those having to spend time in hospital over Christmas.

"It means a lot to see them smile and know that they've had a boost from our visit. I am a dad myself so I can understand what the mums and dads are going through when they are by their child's bedside".

"I think what all the staff do - the doctors, nurses and everyone else in the hospital - is fantastic".

Mr Nolan handed over a donation on behalf of all the players to Barts Health NHS Trust Modern Matron, Eileen Elms to be spent on new ward equipment.

She said: "It was great that West Ham players were able to visit the children and bring them all goodie bags. They spent lots of time signing autographs, taking photos and talking to families, which was greatly appreciated and helped to brighten their day. Staff were also pleased to see the team and we thank them for giving up their time to help us begin our Christmas celebrations on Acorn ward."

BOROUGH TO HOST SUMMER OF SPORT

BARKING and Dagenham Council is to organise a two-day summer sporting festival.

The Community Games will kick off in June and be held at Mayesbrook Park and Sporthouse with more than 400 people expected to take part.

Council leader Liam Smith said: "The Olympic and Paralympic Games showed that when we have the chance, the residents and sports-people of our borough leap at the chance to get involved themselves in keeping active and also show real support for those who want to take part.

"We want the two day event to be completely inclusive - with sports for people with disabilities and those who are non-disabled.

Day one of the event will be an event for schools to enter teams of young people that may not have the opportunity to participate in the top school teams and do not participate in sport and physical activity away from school.

Day two of the event will be a community-focused event for people of all ages to get involved, as well as discovering for themselves the opportunities that are available through the many successful sports clubs which are active around the borough.

Supporting clubs will have the opportunity to apply for funding in return for attending the events and providing free spaces for new members for up to 10 weeks.

Care survey

CARERS in Barking and Dagenham can share their daily experiences in a survey.

The survey hopes to find out if the services that carers receive are helping them in their role and their life outside of caring.

All councils will need to deliver the 2012/13 Carers Survey and provide results to Health and Social Care Information Centre by March 2013.

Call Sally Jones on 020 8227 3314.

Festive concert

A CHRISTMAS concert is taking place at St Peter's Church in Aldborough Hatch on Saturday night.

There will be festive words and songs and the organisers have promised that the heating will be on in the church!

For more information or to reserve tickets, call Yvonne Jeffries on 020 8599 7250 or Martyn Stewart on 01277 821790.

VISIT: Boris Johnson with the volunteers.

Businessman meets Boris in Year of the Volunteer scheme

A DAGENHAM businessman visited Boris Johnson at City Hall as part of the Mayor's Year of the Volunteer initiative.

The Mayor of London had previously sent his deputy Victoria Borwick on a fact-finding mission to Saint Francis Hospice, following which the call came for a group of volunteers to represent the 800-strong body of people who give their time and talents selflessly to support the work throughout the organisation.

Rakesh Silliara attended with other volunteers from across the Havering-atte-Bower hospice service, including shops, IPU and bereavement counselling, to demonstrate the breadth of services provided by volunteers.

In 2004, Rakesh, a self-employed accountant, was looking for an opportunity to do some voluntary work, and came across some Saint Francis Hospice literature. He was impressed with the nature of the work and applied to become a volunteer. He now works on the inpatient unit every week, and enjoys contact with the patients as he serves meals and helps around the ward.

"I very much enjoy my work at the hospice, and look forward to my weekly shift on the ward," he said. "It was an honour to represent the hospice and to meet the mayor, and for him to recognise the value of voluntary contributions to an organisation like Saint Francis Hospice."

Children's charity enjoys festive fun

AROUND 70 children were invited to The Dream Factory's Christmas party last week.

Also joining in the fun at Mooro's restaurant, in Chigwell, were volunteer elves, reindeer, Miss Santas and Father Christmas – and the Party Belles and Marco the Clown, who donated their time free of charge.

Helping with the festivities were comedian Terry Alderton, former world boxing champion Colin McMillan and television presenter Lisa Nash, all long-time supporters of the charity, which grants wishes for children and young adults with life-limiting conditions.

Carol Vincent, who appeared in Big Brother, was on hand to do face painting.

The Dream Factory founder Avril Mills said: "Mooro's donated the food and the venue. It was a fantastic day for the 'dream' children and my thanks go to everyone who helped make the event such a success."

Bookers of Dagenham donated all the chocolate selection boxes while Carey's Group gave the raffle prizes.

Pupils meet Paralympian

CHILDREN from a Redbridge school met with a Paralympic gold medallist last week at the launch of The London Independent Hospital's new physiotherapy department.

The pupils from Ilford Preparatory School enjoyed a talk from Sarah Storey, who has amassed 11 gold, eight silver and three bronze Paralympic medals, along with Dr Nick Webborn, who works at the hospital and was chief medical officer for the 2012 Paralympic team.

Dr Webborn spoke to the children of the importance of exercise and following and achieving their dreams.

Sarah said: "It is important we do nurture the future sporting talent to compete on the national stage but sport and fitness is also vitally important in promoting a healthy lifestyle."

Speaking at the launch, Barbara Wiggs, headmistress of Ilford Preparatory School, stated: "The Olympics and Paralympics have provided an excellent opportunity to the children of east London to get involved, try a new sport and reach their goals. On behalf of all our students we would like to extend our thanks to Sarah Storey, Dr Webborn and BMI The London Independent Hospital's physio team for making the evening such a success."

Final appeal over mystery death

DETECTIVES investigating a mystery death are making final appeals to identify a man found drowned in Stratford three years ago before he is laid to rest.

The man's body was found in the River Lea near Stratford High Street's junction with Abbey Lane, on December 12, 2009.

He had been in the water for a few hours, but had no injuries to his body. However, police have been unable to identify him.

Detective Sergeant Gerard Healy, of Newham Police, said: "We remain optimistic that this anniversary appeal along with the release of a new computer generated image, will finally lead to the identification and the dignified burial that this man deserves."

The man is described as white, aged between 40 and 50, around 5ft 9inches tall and of medium build. He had blue eyes, collar length black/greying hair (receding on top) and he was unshaven.

There are no tattoos on his body, although the man has two, one-centimetre, surgical scars on the front of the left knee and two piercings in the left ear.

He was dressed in a white 'Urban Spirit' t-shirt with the number '37' on the front; a blue 'Originals' jumper, black 'Urban Spirit' jeans in a size 30, white socks and a pair of size nine black 'Groundwork' safety boots.

Anyone with information is urged to call the incident room at Newham on 020 8217 4383.

Outnumbered, BBC1, 9.35pm
Children may say the funniest things, but teens tend to restrict themselves to dark mutterings and the occasional cry of 'It's so unfair!'. So, the makers of Outnumbered could have a problem on their hands as child stars Ramona Marquez and Daniel Roche get older, and their surreal, semi-improvised dialogue starts to sound less natural. Fortunately, it appears writers Andy Hamilton and Guy Jenkin may be one step ahead of us, as this Christmas episode isn't just relying on the kids to generate the laughs as it sees the Brockmans joined by special guests Mark Heap and Sanjeev Bhaskar. Pete and Sue are hoping to foster a sense of community by inviting the neighbours round for dinner, but putting traumatised ex-weatherman Ray, opinionated Norris, and lovelorn Jane round the same table sounds more likely to lead to feuding over the garden fences, especially as Ben is in charge of the party games. Meanwhile, Jake seems to have fallen in with the wrong crowd, Gran is about to spring a huge surprise, and Karen would prefer to do her seasonal socialising online.

When Miranda Hart first took up a role alongside the likes of Pam Ferris and Judy Parfitt in this fantastic-looking period drama, many tuned in purely to see how the comic would fare in something so serious. Actually, she did rather well, and since the last time the girls appeared on our screens, the show's become appreciated over the pond, with one American publication stating that the cast is 'marvellous' and the set pieces 'meticulously recreated'. Well, luckily for us, we get another dose of the drama in this Christmas special, in which an abandoned baby is discovered at the convent. The community rallies round to make sure the little one is looked after, but the more pressing matter is discovering who the mother is and why she left him there. As investigations get underway, Jenny gets embroiled in the mystery that surrounds a semi-vagrant local woman. Meanwhile, Chummy goes to great lengths to put on a truly memorable children's Nativity play. For those who prefer to get a few laughs out of our Miranda, fear not – the Beeb is treating us to a few episodes of her sitcom over the festive period.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS

Mary's Bottom Line, Channel 4, 7pm

Mary Portas could never be accused of being shy of hard work. So if it's business acumen you need pointing in the direction of, she's your go-to woman. But here is where it all gets really interesting, and we can find out once and for all if Mary practises what she so passionately preaches. A year ago, she launched her most ambitious project to date; an attempt to reignite the UK's clothing industry by starting her own production line, manufacturing British knickers. In this one-off programme, we check in with her to see how all is going, and with Mary and her staff working flat-out to meet demand for the Christmas market, she sees how other parts of the British textile industry can indeed be transformed with British-based manufacturing. At the factory, Mary's trainees explain how a steady job and regular pay packet have actually changed their lives, and its comments like this that spur Mary on in further projects – like her anti-cellulite knicker prototype which she's keen to road-test. With the nine-month funding soon to come to an end, and her trainees almost ready to graduate, has Mary done enough for her business?

All New It'll Be Alright on the Night, ITV1, 9pm

Sometimes the simplest ideas turn out to be the best. Take It'll Be Alright on the Night. All told it is simply a selection of mistakes made by actors and presenters. They've been captured on film making what former host Denis Norden would describe as a 'cock-up', cut together by an editing team and then delivered to our screens for our amusement. Easy, right? It's a wonder nobody thought of doing it before 1977, when this show first turned up on TV. At its peak, the programme gained almost 20 million viewers, and although ratings have been falling steadily in the years since, it's such a cheaply made, yet often hilarious, TV that the shows keep coming. Norden retired from presenting in 2006, citing his age (he was then 84) and ill health for his reason to step down. He was replaced by the relatively sprightly Griff Rhys Jones, who's back this week for another new episode. Among the celebrities making embarrassing mistakes are Ant and Dec, Holly Willoughby, Bradley Walsh and Gino D'Acampo. Clips also come from the likes of Coronation Street, Emmerdale, Surprised Surprise and The Chase.

Stephen Fry: Gadget Man Christmas Special, Channel 4, 6.50pm

For millions of us, Christmas is a time when we throw caution to the wind and blow a small fortune on the latest must-have toys, whether it's an e-reader than can store a thousand books; a tablet which plays funny viral clips of cats falling off tables, or a 3D TV which gives you a mild headache (when you eventually get the credit card bill). One man who doesn't have to worry too much about such hideous financial matters is Stephen Fry, the handsomely paid, in-demand master of linguistics and owner of countless desirable toys. (Just ask him about the latest Apple product and he'll be talking for hours given half a chance). In the latest helping of tech-related features, the national treasure explores links between the festive season and technology. He'll be taking a trip down memory lane by spotlighting must-have products from past Christmases; takes a wry look at toys and decorations; reviews a selection of the latest gizmos, and draws up a wish-list for Santa. Let's just hope the eponymous host is not on the naughty list.

Take Care Of Your Teeth!

80% of the adult population will have gum disease or sensitive teeth at some point in their lives. It can start in your teens or in adulthood. Are you one of them?

Most individuals will develop a gum problem during their life, but around 1 in 10 are prone to severe gum disease resulting in tooth loss. Gum disease often runs in families. Smokers are more susceptible and need more help. Stress may also exacerbate underlying problems. Furthermore certain general diseases such as diabetes and heart diseases tend to make an individual more susceptible to losing their teeth and having bleeding gums.

How do I know if I have gum disease?

Most commonly the gums will bleed on brushing. There may be bad breath (halitosis). In more advanced disease the teeth may become loose or painful. Frequently there is gum recession and sensitive teeth.

How to beat the disease...

Prevention and control of bleeding gums and periodontal disease is important. Visiting a Dentist or Hygienist regularly is recommended as the only way. Hygienists work to remove the bacteria and plaque and advise you on the best technique customized to improve and keep away gum disease.

A Specialist Periodontist has been specially trained to care for patients who have gum disease, they can produce healthy gums and bone around teeth fast and effectively.

Help from a periodontist will be necessary in cases of:

- Severe gum disease, persistent bleeding gums and mobile (wobbly) teeth.
- The periodontist can improve the problem quickly by root planing (cleaning the infected surface of a root). This is virtually painless and very effective.
- The periodontist can re-shape your gums if there has been recession and they can achieve stability of your teeth. A periodontist will improve the chances of you keeping your teeth.

I need to find a Specialist Periodontist - How do I do this?

At Longwood House you can also arrange a consultation directly with a Periodontist who is a Registered Specialist with the General Dental Council.

Specialists work in only a few dental practices and in the past patients seeking treatment would have had to travel several miles to receive treatment. However, Longwood House in Ilford is a local Specialist Dental Clinic also recognized in the UK as a BDA Good Practice. The Clinic has experienced clinicians and was established in Ilford by The Award Winning Implant and Cosmetic Dentist - Dr Tasleem Ahmed (Clinical Lecturer Kings College London.)

Longwood House has been providing the Ilford and East London with specialist services since 2006, please visit the website or contact us for more details.

TREATMENT: Miss Jamaica UK, Gemma Feare, with students.

A pamper day for Miss Jamaica UK at college

THE RECENTLY crowned Miss Jamaica UK dropped in to Waltham Forest College last week for a day of pampering.

Gemma Feare spoke to students on the Level 2 fast-track hairdressing course about her career as a presenter and actress, as well as offering advice on how to achieve their ambitions.

Hairdressing student Niki Ottum then shampooed, conditioned and blow dried Gemma's hair.

Gemma said: "The College's Elite Salons are amazing and the students are really well trained, it's just like being in a professional salon."

Between treatments Gemma enjoyed sampling the food catering students had prepared in Cafe on 4.

In the afternoon she was given a luxury manicure by Rianna Cuddy, who is studying for Level 2 beauty specialist techniques diploma.

Rianna said: "When I was told that I had been chosen to give Miss Jamaica UK her treatment I was really nervous. But Gemma is really a lovely person so I just got on the doing her nails."

Susan Gibson, hairdressing lecturer said: "My students are in the first term of their course and they are already taking bookings from the public. Today was a little more pressuring but I'm really pleased with the quality of their work."

Gemma said: "The facilities here are superb and I thoroughly enjoyed my day at the College."
